MORE THAN A CENTURY OF SERVICE TO AMERICAN SCHOLARSHIP

The W.F. Albright Institute of Archaeological Research in Jerusalem is the oldest American research center for Ancient Near Eastern Studies in the Middle East. Founded in 1900 as the American School of Oriental Research (ASOR), it was renamed in 1970 after its most distinguished director, William Foxwell Albright. Today, the Albright is one of three separately incorporated institutes affiliated with ASOR, the others being in Amman and Nicosia. The Albright's facility of two buildings was constructed in 1925, including a library, hostel, offices, storage rooms, kitchen, dining and common rooms, and the Annual Professor's Apartment (now the Balcony Apartment and Annex). The Director's House (now including the Garden Apartment) was added in 1930. Parts of the facility were renovated in 1985, 2003, 2005, 2007, and 2010 and major renovations were completed in the G. Ernest Wright Lab in 2008 and in the Joy Gottesman Ungerleider Hostel in 2009. Located 500 meters north of the old walled city of Jerusalem, the Albright is within easy walking distance of the École Biblique, the Kenyon Institute and the German, and Spanish Schools of Archaeology, the Hebrew Union College-Nelson Glueck School of Biblical Archaeology, the Hebrew University, the Rockefeller Museum, and the Israel Antiquities Authority. This grouping of scholarly facilities represents one of the heaviest concentrations of human, bibliographic, and artifact resources in Ancient Near Eastern Studies.

For the past 114 years, Albright/ASOR has provided students and scholars with an unparalleled international cultural environment and a unique program that spans the broad spectrum of Near Eastern Studies from prehistory to the early Islamic Period. Each year, Albright Fellows, primarily from the United States, Canada, Europe, China, Israel, and the Palestinian Authority, exchange information and ideas with hundreds of other local and foreign researchers, including those from other countries in the eastern Mediterranean basin. Dedicated to the advancement of the study of the literature, history, and culture of the ancient Near East, including the disciplines of the Archaeology of Palestine and Biblical Studies, the Albright continues to be a major research center and to strive for excellence in scholarship.

Now, as in the past, the Albright Institute provides a wide range of programs and facilities for doctoral and post-doctoral research, as well as an information-sharing program and field work experience for more than 2,800 persons. These include an annual series of lectures, reports, workshops, field trips, social events, and support for 31 ASOR-affiliated and Albright-assisted excavation and publications projects. It also includes a publications program, an extensive research library, workshops, and living accommodations. The Albright Institute jointly sponsors with the Institute of Archaeology of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem the long-term Tel Miqne-Ekron excavation and publications project.

THE ERNEST S. FRERICHS PROGRAM FOR ALBRIGHT FELLOWS

PROGRAM

The program includes workshops, reports, lectures, appointees' evenings with guest scholars, research institute visits, field trips, an internship program with the Hebrew University, and a series of lectures for faculty and students at the Institute of Archaeology of Al-Quds University.

AWARDS

GRANTS AND FELLOWSHIPS

In the current academic year, the Albright awarded over $325,000 in grants, fellowships, and fees. These include two awards for the Seymour Gitin Distinguished Professorship, an Annual Professor, four National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Fellows, an Ernest S. Frerichs Fellow/Program Coordinator, two Educational and Cultural Affairs (ECA) Fellows, four Noble Group Fellows, a Glassman Holland, a George A. Barton, and an R. and E. Hecht Fellow. Thirteen ECA administrative fee grants were awarded to Albright Associate Fellows. This year, the Albright has 66 Fellows, including 31 with stipends and fee awards from the Institute and 35 Associate Senior, Post-Doctoral, and Research Fellows with funding from other sources. All Albright fellowships are open to citizens and residents of the United States, except for the Noble Group Fellowships for Chinese scholars and students and the Glassman Holland Research Fellowship for European scholars. The Gitin Distinguished Professorship, the George A. Barton, the Carol and Eric Meyers Doctoral Dissertation, and the Associate Fellowships are open to scholars of all nationalities.

THE SEAN W. DEVER MEMORIAL PRIZE

This is an annual award of $650 for the best published article or paper presented at a conference by a Ph.D. candidate in Syro-Palestinian or Biblical Archaeology. Authors may be of any nationality, but the articles/papers must be in English. All submissions should include the academic affiliation of the author and his/her postal and e-mail address and telephone and fax numbers. Submission of conference papers should also include the name of the conference and the date on which the paper was presented. The deadline for submissions is December 31, 2013. Articles/papers should be sent to the W.F. Albright Institute of Archaeological Research, P.O. Box 40151, Philadelphia, PA 19106, USA. The award will be announced on March 1, 2014.
